Congratulations to this week's Falcons of the week - Landon Lauria, Wyatt Rossmann, Ethan Hock, Kearsten Shipman

Just a reminder that you should be checking your attendance before Wednesday of next week for any discrepancies.

Falcons, being wrong can be a learning experience. It can inform us of ways we need to improve or if we need to change our approach. There are other times, however, when we have it all together. It won't happen often, but sometimes there is something about you, often through hard work, that is as perfect as it can be. If you've got something about you that is the best it can be, then this word is for you: Irreproachable. To be irreproachable is to be without flaw. It is to be blameless or without fault. Here it is in a sentence: Through a lot of hard work and tears, Mrs. Hughey was able to find an irreproachable solution to the problem that satisfied everyone. See Mr. Pilarski about winning fabulous prizes related to our word of the week.
